Homestead-Miami Speedway Event Update

Hurricane Matthew remains a Category 3 hurricane but the forecast for Miami-Dade County has improved greatly

Hurricane Matthew will produce tropical storm winds in Miami-Dade County starting between 2-3 p.m. today (Thursday). The wind projections for the Homestead are forecast to be 50 mph or less.

The mayor of Miami-Dade County held a press conference this morning which stated there is a 13 percent chance of hurricane force winds hitting Miami-Dade County.

Homestead-Miami Speedway will continue to park any rigs that present at Gate 18 Infield Entrance until 4 p.m. today.

The Speedway's non-essential staff are working a half day today, and will report back to work Friday morning. In the event you have a situation requiring the Speedway, their security detail is present throughout the night.

The official paddock load in remains Friday from 8-6 p.m. For the teams that are parked at the Speedway, please, be available to move your rig to its assigned paddock area at 8 a.m. Friday.

There are no changes to the Saturday or Sunday schedule and no changes are anticipated.

SCCA Pro Management will continue to monitor the weather conditions with Trans Am Series Management and Homestead Speedway and we will transmit any changes as soon as we know of them.
